URAMAKI & FUTOMAKI:

URAMAKI: it is a rolled sushi, except that the outer layer is rice and the inner layer is nori seaweed. The Japanese word "Ura" means upside down, so the ingredients are placed in a different order. It is also cut into portions ideal for enjoying a bite.

FUTOMAKI: It is the famous "thick roll sushi". In fact, the Futomaki is usually approximately two to three centimeters thick and is usually cut into between 9 and 10 pieces. As you can see, it is a consistent sushi with plenty of capacity to house different ingredients.
